04 — NEWSBRIEF

Quick hits

1 More of us are batch-cooking at the weekend to dodge the weeknight scramble.
Freezers are filling with portioned dinners. The classic mistake: forgetting to label them, then playing 'mystery soup' on a Wednesday.

2 Cold-water taps for filling pets' bowls and watering cans are the surprise garden-centre hit.
With more of us gardening, small convenience gadgets are booming — though the watering can remains undefeated.

3 The great British picnic is being upgraded, with sales of fold-out chairs and cool bags climbing.
We're venturing out more, weather permitting. The traditional picnic still ends, as ever, with at least one item dropped in the grass.

4 Knitting and crochet are booming with a new generation, sold as the ultimate screen-free wind-down.
Beginners start with scarves and quietly accumulate wool. The first project, makers admit, is usually 'a bit wonky but loved'.

5 A poll says most people can't remember the last time they wrote a letter by hand.
Yet greetings-card sales remain strong — we'll happily sign our name, just not write a full page.

6 Reusable coffee cups are finally outnumbering disposables in some city centres.
Cafés offering a small discount have seen the biggest shift. The catch: most of us still leave the cup at home half the time.

7 The crossword and puzzle boom is still going strong, in print and on phones.
Publishers report a surge in daily puzzlers. The most argued-over answer in households remains anything involving a cryptic clue.

05 — TALKBACK

For the phone lines

OUR SURVEY SAID

Q 71% of us judge a cafe instantly on THIS.
ANSWER: WHETHER THE TOILETS ARE NICE.

Q The most common little victory that makes our whole day is apparently THIS.
ANSWER: GETTING THE GREEN LIGHT ALL THE WAY TO WORK.

TALK TOPIC

- New research says the average person has visited fewer than half the places on their own doorstep.
  What's the famous local spot you've still never been to despite living nearby for years?

TRUE STORY OR JACKANORY — LISTENERS GUESS

FACT Space. A day on Venus is longer than its year — the planet spins so slowly that it takes longer to rotate once than to orbit the Sun.

FICTION Made up, but believable. A stargazing society in Devon has banned biscuits at meetings after too many telescopes were found with chocolatey fingerprints on the lenses.
