Quick hits

- 1 A new trend sees people embracing 'micro-gardening' in unexpected places around their homes.
From tiny herb gardens on windowsills to miniature succulent displays on bookshelves, people are finding joy in nurturing small pockets of green, proving you don't need a huge garden to get your hands dirty.
- 2 Experts are highlighting the surprising psychological benefits of 'watching clouds go by'.
Taking a few moments to simply observe the ever-changing shapes in the sky is being touted as a simple yet effective way to practise mindfulness and reduce everyday stress.
- 3 The unexpected popularity of 'retro video games' is bringing families together for some classic fun.
Forget the latest graphics; parents are dusting off consoles from their youth, introducing their children to pixelated adventures and sparking multi-generational gaming tournaments.
- 4 There's a growing appreciation for the soothing art of 'leaf pressing and framing'.
People are collecting beautiful autumn leaves, carefully pressing them, and creating stunning, natural artwork to adorn their homes, celebrating the changing seasons indoors.
- 5 A study suggests that 'listening to the radio' while working on a creative task can boost inspiration.
The gentle background hum of voices and music, without the visual distraction of television, appears to foster a more relaxed and imaginative environment for problem-solving.
- 6 The charming tradition of 'leaving flowers for neighbours' is seeing a lovely resurgence.
Small bunches of garden blooms or shop-bought posies are being anonymously left on doorsteps, spreading joy and strengthening community bonds with a simple, thoughtful gesture.
- 7 Many are rediscovering the simple pleasure of 'writing postcards from holidays'.
In an age of instant digital communication, sending a physical postcard with a handwritten message offers a delightful, tangible memento for both the sender and the recipient, proving some traditions never truly fade.

05 – TALKBACK

For the phone lines

OUR SURVEY SAID

Q Our survey said that over 70% of us admit to secretly 'doing' what with our shopping trolley, even though we know it might not be entirely polite?

ANSWER: HUMMING A LITTLE TUNE AS YOU PUSH IT AROUND THE SUPERMARKET, IMAGINING IT'S YOUR OWN PERSONAL SOUND SYSTEM!

Q Our survey said that over 65% of us admit to having a particular 'odd habit' they absolutely have to do before enjoying a lovely, fresh bath or shower. What is it?

ANSWER: TESTING THE WATER WITH THEIR ELBOW FIRST, EVEN IF THEY'VE ALREADY CHECKED THE TEMPERATURE WITH THEIR HAND!

TALK TOPIC

- We all have those 'little rituals' we perform before leaving the house, don't we?
Whether it's a specific order for checking pockets, a particular way you lock the door, or a quick glance in a certain mirror, what's your non-negotiable routine before stepping out?
- Think about a 'small, everyday sound' that you used to find irritating, but now you actually quite like or even find comforting.
Perhaps it's the distant rumble of a train, the 'ding' of the microwave, or even the sound of your neighbour's lawnmower on a Saturday morning. What's grown on you?

TRUE STORY OR JACKANORY – LISTENERS GUESS

FACT History. Did you know that in the 17th century, tulips were so valuable in Holland that their bulbs were used as currency and could be worth more than houses?

FICTION Made up, but believable. Back in the 18th century, it was fashionable for wealthy British families to hire 'garden hermits' to live in follies on their estates, purely for aesthetic purposes.
