Today's top stories

- 1

Edinburgh secondary schools are set to ban mobile phones from August, with pupils having to put devices in magnetically sealed pouches.

The new rule will apply throughout the entire school day, including during breaks and lunchtime. It's a move to help students focus more on learning and social interaction.

ON AIR — Would a phone ban like this work in schools across the UK, or is it too restrictive for modern pupils?

EDUCATION · UK
- 2

A teacher and two pupils have been stabbed in an attack at a school in Blackley, Greater Manchester.

A 14-year-old schoolgirl has been arrested following the knife attack at the Co-op Academy. All three victims are being treated for their injuries.

ON AIR — It's a really worrying story – what more can be done to keep our schools safe for both staff and students?

CRIME · UK
- 3

A shocking report reveals that 300 migrants bound for the UK were kidnapped and threatened with kidney removal.

The Iraqi Kurds were captured by a militia who demanded a ransom of $5,000 per person. This highlights the extreme dangers faced by those attempting to reach the UK.

ON AIR — It's a truly horrific story. What does this tell us about the desperate measures some people are taking to get to the UK?

MIGRATION · UK
- 4

Schools in Scotland are reportedly cutting subjects from their timetables due to a 'crisis' in teacher shortages.

Education leaders say some secondary schools are having to reduce their offerings because they simply don't have enough specialist teachers. This could impact student choices and future prospects.

ON AIR — Are we seeing similar teacher shortages in England and Wales, and what impact could this have on the next generation?

Quick hits

1 British gardeners are finding joy in 'cottagecore' aesthetics, turning their plots into whimsical, abundant havens.

It's all about natural, slightly wild planting, with an emphasis on colourful flowers, edible plants, and a charming, rustic feel. Think less manicured lawns and more relaxed, overflowing borders.

2 The simple pleasure of stargazing is making a comeback across the UK.

With more dark sky reserves and accessible apps, families and individuals are rediscovering the wonder of the night sky, away from city lights. It's a lovely, peaceful way to reconnect with nature.

3 A new appreciation for 'heritage crafts' is emerging, with many Brits learning traditional skills.

From basket weaving to blacksmithing, people are keen to master crafts passed down through generations. It offers a tangible connection to history and a sense of accomplishment.

4 The trend of 'library tourism' is quietly growing, as people seek out beautiful and historic libraries to visit.

These architectural gems offer more than just books; they're often stunning spaces for reflection and cultural exploration. It's a wonderful way to experience a city's intellectual heart.

5 British homes are increasingly embracing 'biophilic design', bringing more of the outdoors inside.

This involves incorporating natural light, plants, and natural materials like wood and stone into interiors. The aim is to create a calming, health-boosting environment that feels connected to nature.

6 The delightful art of 'gifting experiences' rather than physical presents is gaining popularity.

Instead of another gadget, people are opting for concert tickets, cookery classes, or weekend getaways. It creates lasting memories and reduces clutter, which is a win-win!

7 More people are discovering the meditative benefits of 'forest bathing', or Shinrin-yoku, in local woodlands.

It's not about hiking, but simply being present and immersing your senses in the atmosphere of the forest. Many report feeling more relaxed and refreshed afterwards.

05 – TALKBACK

For the phone lines

OUR SURVEY SAID

Q Our survey said that over 70% of us admit to having a specific 'lucky' mug or cup that makes our morning brew taste even better. What's yours?

ANSWER: IT'S USUALLY A SLIGHTLY CHIPPED, WELL-LOVED MUG FROM A HOLIDAY OR A SENTIMENTAL GIFT!

Q A recent poll asked Brits what small, everyday item they always seem to have an abundance of, even though they can never find the one they actually need. What came out on top?

ANSWER: SOCKS! SPECIFICALLY, ODD SOCKS. THE SINGLE ONES WAITING FOR THEIR LOST PARTNER!

TALK TOPIC

- Do you ever find yourself having an imaginary conversation with someone when you're alone, perhaps rehearsing what you'd say or just thinking aloud?

It's a curious habit many of us share, whether it's planning out a tricky phone call or just debating something in our heads. What kind of imaginary conversations do you have?

- You know how sometimes a particular piece of music just perfectly matches the weather or your mood, almost like a soundtrack to your day?

Whether it's a sunny pop song on a clear morning or a mellow tune on a rainy afternoon, certain songs just 'fit'. What song feels like the soundtrack to your current day?

TRUE STORY OR JACKANORY – LISTENERS GUESS

FACT History. Did you know that in ancient Rome, it was common for people to clean their teeth using a paste made from crushed mouse brains?

FICTION Made up, but believable. Queen Victoria once had a pet parrot that was taught to sing the entire British national anthem, complete with a tiny Union Jack flag.
